Insurance questions, high energy bills, and worries about smoke and power outages are coming up in more Bay Area listings and buyer conversations. Buyers are asking what a home will really cost to run, whether it can be insured, and how it will hold up when air quality drops or the grid goes down. This class covers what makes a home healthier, more efficient, and better prepared for wildfire, and how to talk about it with clients so they can make informed decisions.

We'll cover:

- Indoor air quality, heat pumps, induction cooking, and water
- Solar, battery storage, and EV charging
- Home hardening and defensible space
- Wildfire insurance and when to refer clients to a professional
- Home Energy Score and other certifications
- Rebates and incentives, including BayREN

Class fees are waived thanks to the support of our sponsors:
